If you don't get a buck, perhaps you can get buck fever.

In Mexico the rule is: When out of a job start a revolution.

One good quality about the German war reports is their note of optimism; the enemy rarely has a ghost of a show now or in the future, according to their estimate.

The casualties on the cruiser Sydney, destroyer of the Emden, are said to have been three dead and 15 wounded. Admiral Dewey's before-breakfast chore 16 years back is recalled thereby.

The Vermont state forestry department seems to have overlooked the fact there are no Sunday evening newspapers in Vermont when it issued a story about the department's work, the story to be released for publication on the evening of Nov. 15 (the third Sunday in the month).

The formal declaration of war against it by five nations, some of which are called world powers, must make Turkey a trifle apprehensive of the result, even though allied with Germany. Austria as ally does not count very strongly at the present time and all the support that Turkey can hope for must come from Germany; and Germany, by the way, has its hands rather well filled with conflict against the allied nations.

According to the estimates of the United States department of agriculture for Nov. 1, Vermont raised more corn, more wheat, more oats, more barley, more buckwheat, more potatoes, more apples and, finally, less hay, in 1914 than it did in the year just preceding. It is a very reassuring estimate for the farming interests of the state and furnishes encouragement for renewed efforts for the next year.

In a state like Massachusetts and with a candidacy as formidable, Samuel W. McCall's personal expense account of $1,675 during the campaign is extremely modest. Perhaps there is another story to be told when the Republican state committee of Massachusetts reveals what it spent in behalf of McCall and the other Republican candidates. But whatever the amount of the expense account of the state committee, the experience of McCall has been that it is possible for a man to run for office without paying out a fortune, providing, of course, he has the ready co-operation of party supporters throughout the state.

The German cruiser Emden had done its work thoroughly and terribly. Many a sigh of relief must have been heard in British shipping circles following the announcement of the destruction of the fighting terror of the seas. Nevertheless, the same commander and the same intrepid crew can make another vessel of the German navy just as formidable a danger to commerce, and Germany probably will not lose much time in putting the commander and crew, who are said to have escaped when the Emden was beached, on a new, fast cruiser to continue the work of the Emden. It is a low form of warfare but distinctly harassing.

The success of the agricultural extension school at South Barre some time ago, in which the farmers of Barre Town and vicinity co-operated enthusiastically, has resulted in the selection of South Barre as the Washington county center for demonstrations in canning; and the demonstration will be held there on Tuesday, Nov. 17, at 2 o'clock in the afternoon. As this will be the only demonstration in this vicinity, the next nearest place being Chelsea, it behooves all the farmers and others interested to attend this exhibition. The demonstration will be conducted by a representative of the United States department of agriculture, assisted by a representative of the extension work of the University of Vermont and state agricultural college. There should be a large attendance.

WOOD ALCOHOL AND EXISTING LAW ENFORCEMENT.

The New York Globe and Commercial Advertiser thinks one of the first things the Vermont legislature ought to do on assembling next January is to pass an act to prevent wood alcohol poisoning, the thought having arisen from the wholesale poisoning of men in the town of Bristol. It seems to us that a little stricter enforcement of the laws that we have relative to sale of liquor might go a long way toward preventing such terrible consequences as those which resulted in Bristol from the sale of a liquid which was supposed to be "cologne spirit," as it is alleged. It is reported that 75 persons either bought or partook of some of the liquid obtained at a certain store in Bristol on a certain day, which constituted a good deal in a small community. By what legal right was the stuff being dispensed? That is a question which is being considered by many people who have read of the terrible accident.

For that important step, here are the right trousers designed for boys, not for men; and the norfoks and double-breasted coats in the right class. Suits, $3 to $10.

Overcoats, too, in all the newest styles. The short, roomy, easy kind, and the long, warm, double-breasted variety.

Prices, $5 to $12. Raincoats, $5, $10, $15.

Our boys' department is as complete as our men's store.

Sweet-Orr union-made trousers, $1.50 to $7.50.

fair. Why did the community permit the sale? is another puzzling question. Labeling poisons is a good thing. Strict enforcement of laws we have is also a good thing. Why not have both?

ORGANIZED ATTACK ON TUBERCULOSIS.

The work of fighting tuberculosis is much better organized in the state of New York than in almost all the other states of the union, one reason being perhaps that there is greater need for concerted effort than in the other states of the union because of the greater prevalence of the disease in the huddled centers of population. One indication of the better organization is the fact that a statewide conference on the disease is being held this week in the city of Syracuse, representations coming from all parts of the state to the number of several hundred earnest workers whose purpose it is to hear of the progress made during the past year, to formulate new plans for the extermination of tuberculosis and to determine which, if any, efforts should be cut off in the interests of efficiency. By this clearing-house of ideas where the experiences of many medical and lay men in every section of the state may be brought together it is possible to ascertain what steps are the most feasible for the campaign against tuberculosis; and those who are engaged in the work are enabled to know with some degree of certainty just what advance is being made. It is such organized work that counts in the efforts to eliminate tuberculosis; whereas the isolated, non-associated and non-instructive movements for the wiping out of the disease have merely their local influence and thus lose something of their value for the general good. A conference on tuberculosis, when entered into earnestly by a large number of people from all sections of a state, is bound to result in advancement of the work; and in holding such a conference New York is setting a fine example for the other states of the union. Sooner or later those other states are bound to have their conferences of like nature, in the interests of the public health.

CURRENT COMMENT

The Same Old Bryan.

"Now that the election is over," says Secretary Bryan, "the protected manufacturers are already resuming work. Some of them suspended operations or cut down their forces before the election, and they did it under conditions which left little doubt that they hoped to arouse opposition to the new tariff law."

Men don't change. At times they seem to, but then something occurs to show that it is "the same old Bryan," as Sulzer put it. It has been said that Mr. Bryan has been instructed by the passing years. But here he is the same old Bryan that Woodrow Wilson ardently prayed should be knocked into a cocked hat; the Bryan that saw in his successive overwhelming defeats nothing but "concession" and the success of dark and dreadful conspiracies.

Argument cannot reach a mind capable of believing that profit-seeking manufacturers deliberately sacrifice opportunities to make money. One might as well converse with a man who thinks he is Napoleon. There is an incredible absurdity. Secretary Bryan is well intentioned—is anxious to do his part toward making a better world, but, nevertheless, in view of his reverence to his old form, sympathy must go out to the president as one reflects how his patients must be daily tried.—New York Globe.

"All In."

The Progressives were going to split the solid south. (Ed. Roosevelt made a trip to New Orleans to pitch the key note of a campaign designed to wrest Louisiana from the Democracy on the tariff issue, doubtless an acute one in that state. What happened? Louisiana returned one Progressive and seven Democrats. The south does not split very easily. Her people regard their own economic advantage as subordinate to maintaining white supremacy, and that they feel endangered by any party division into which the negro might become a factor.

But this all works around. Have you noticed the number of Progressives who have acknowledged since the election the futility of further third party efforts? Kincaide, in our own 14th district, has virtually thrown up the sponge, and so has Davenport, the party candidate for governor of New York. This outcome has been inevitable, so long as only one section of the country ever divides on issues. By dividing into two parts, even though disproportionate, either one enjoys a fair chance of success. But division by three means the permanent entrenchment of the section which knows no disputes. The tolerance of that outcome would be contrary to human nature. Hence the very solidity of the south, exhibited in Louisiana, has really been at the basis of the present wind-up of the third party movement. As a close student of American politics Mr. Roosevelt should have known that this would be so.—Boston Herald.

LAUTERBACH FREED ON $1,000 BAIL

Lawyer Indicted With David Lamar, Called the "Wolf of Wall Street," Pleads Not Guilty and Gives Bond.

New York, Nov. 11.—Edward Lauterbach, lawyer and former Republican leader, jointly indicted as a co-conspirator with David Lamar, otherwise known as the "Wolf of Wall Street," on a charge of falsely impersonating Congressman A. Mitchell Palmer, with intent to defraud, appeared yesterday before Judge Rufus E. Foster in the criminal branch of the United States district court and entered a tentative plea of not guilty.

On motion of his counsel, Henry L. Schuermann, Lauterbach, was given a week to demur or take any such action as he may consider proper for his defense. His bond, fixed at $1,000, was furnished by Nathan Straus.

The indicted lawyer had nothing to say regarding the charge against him, but remarked that Mr. Straus would go on his bail for $1,000,000 if necessary.

"Mr. Lauterbach," said Mr. Straus, with a smile after bail had been furnished, "is a man with a very big head, but his heart is much bigger."

Lamar, who has been unable to furnish bail to the amount of $30,000, is still locked up in the Tombs prison.

Democrat Wins by "Scratch" Vote.

Chicago, Ill., Nov. 11.—Unexpected "scratching" by downstate voters probably has elected one Democrat and one Republican as congressmen-at-large from Illinois. Previous returns indicated the success of both Republican candidates, but yesterday with 29 of the 101 counties missing, William E. Williams, Democrat, was 9,550 votes ahead of J. McCall Davis, Republican. The other Republican candidate, Burnett M. Chipperfield, has a seemingly safe lead of 25,875 over Thomas P. Sullivan, Democrat.

OUSTS $61,000,000 SUIT.

Case Against Government was Dismissed Yesterday.

Washington, Nov. 10.—The supreme court yesterday dismissed the suit of the Missouri, Kansas & Texas Railway Co., against the United States for $61,000,000 damages for failure to convey to it alternate sections of land through what was the Indian territory. Congress in 1896 offered alternate sections of public land in Indian territory to the first railroad constructed from Kansas state line to the Red river in Texas. The predecessor of the Missouri, Kansas & Texas won a construction contest, but the government declined to convey the land on the ground that the land was "Indian land" and not "public land," within the meaning of the act. The court of claims decided in favor of the government and the railway appealed to the supreme court, which yesterday affirmed the decision of the lower court.

The appeal of the Twin Falls Canal Co. from the decision of the Idaho supreme court, which held that reclamation companies, under the Carey act, could be required to furnish water to irrigate the entire project, was dismissed yesterday by the supreme court for want of jurisdiction.

The court declined to review the bankruptcy proceedings brought against George D. Howell of Hartford, Conn., by Mechanics & Metals National bank and others.

Holding that the Oklahoma courts had interpreted the state liquor laws as not applicable to interstate commerce, the court dismissed an attack on the constitutionality of the statutes.
